Washington State Patrol's "Most Wanted" Arrest

Detectives from the WSP Criminal Investigation Unit in Bremerton announced the arrest today of WSP Most Wanted suspect Marshall Lee Parris.

Parris was wanted for a vehicular assault that occurred on June 2, 2003 on State Route 101 in Grays Harbor County. Parris had been drinking when he lost control of his vehicle and crossed the centerline, left the roadway, and struck a guardrail and tree severely injuring his passenger.

WSP detective Dan Presba has been attempting to locate Parris since he failed to appear in Grays Harbor County Superior Court in August of 2005. Presba tracked Parris to a residence in Humptulips where the suspect was taken into custody without incident by Presba and Trooper Casey Carson yesterday.

Parris is the 41st WSP Most Wanted Suspect arrested or located and brought to justice since the website was established in September of 2003.
